ONE PAGE, THREE PLANS

The Porthcove Light · page 12 · layout proof

Three plans for the same page, for the author to choose from. Each one holds the same five pictures and the same lines of dialogue; only the split of the page changes, and the crops and the balloons follow it.

Plan A, page 2. Three tiers, the middle one cut into three panels.

```
split="30 / 35 [* | * | *] / *"

Plan B, page 3. Two columns, the left one in two panels, the right one in three.

```
split="60 [* / *] | * [* / * / *]"
```

Plan C, page 4. A tier 30% deep, cut 30 | 20 | the rest, over one tall panel; the cat is an inset over Maya's panel.

split="30 [30 | 20 | *] / *"
```

Every summer, Maya spent a week at the lighthouse.
Grandpa! I'm here!
Just in time. The radio's gone deaf,
and there's a storm on the way.
Grandpa... I think I found the problem.
PURRRR
Radio's working, lamp's lit.
And Biscuit has found a new bed.
